

Welcome to GCB '03

The GCB 2003 conference continues the long tradition of a national bioinformatics conference where German and international bioinformatics meet.

The Munich region has gained a strong momentum in bioinformatics recently as much as other established and emerging centers in Germany. A lively bioinformatics scene is emerging. A special session will therefore report on the activities of the German Bioinformatics Centers.

The conference will take place on the GSF campus at Audience Hall. The GSF National Center for Environment and Health is located just outside the Munich city.

Tutorials

Genome Annotation (MIPS-Group)
Structural Genomics (D. Frishman)
Promoter Analysis (T. Werner)
Teaching (R. Giegerich)

Society Sessions

GBM
DECHEMA
NBCC
etc.

Current Support

GSF
Dechema
BMBF
DFG

Scope and Important Dates

Participants at the recent GCB/ECCB conferences have commented on the need of fostering the biological perspective of bioinformatics. Therefore, we like to emphasize this theme for the 2003 GCB without excluding the computational aspects; however, such emphasis depends much on the submissions.

The conference language will be English.

GCB '03 will feature invited talks, oral paper presentations, a poster session, tutorials, and an industrial exhibition.

Typical, but not exclusive, topics of interest are:

- Molecular Structure
- Molecular Sequence Analysis
- Recognition of genes and regulatory elements
- Metabolic Pathways
- Regulatory Networks
- Gene expression
- Proteomics
- Analysis of genetic variations
- Genomics and genome analysis
- Evolution
- Experimental design
- Classification

Key dates

Manuscript submission: June 30th, 2003
Notification: July 30th, 2003
Poster abstract submission: July 31th, 2003
